

Spring has sprung at LongView Farms! This time of year is especially busy around the farm and despite the current state of our great nation, things are still moving on the farm. We thank you for your trust in us with your land.

COVID-19

The Coronavirus disease has struck the globe like nothing many people have ever experienced. In response to the COVID-19 outbreak, LongView Farms has been taking considerate measures to protect and ensure the health of our employees and families.

Product Supply & Delivery

Farm supply of seed and crop protection products are still being delivered to LongView Farms. Delivery drivers are unfortunately having to unload product by themselves in efforts to social distance.

Farm Improvements

We are working hard to continue to make improvements to the land. Activities like tiling to improve drainage, seeding waterways, clearing of fences and water intakes, and removing of rocks from fields are all vital management practices we are doing to increase the productivity of the land.

Farm Maintenance

Spring is a perfect time to not only make improvements, but also to do regular farm maintenance. CRP burns are a critical part of maintaining the conservation of the land.

Spring Tillage & Anhydrous

The application of anhydrous is completed to prep the seed bed for the 2020 planting season. Other spring tillage such as field cultivating and disking are keeping us busy as well.

Trucking Grain

We are emptying the grain bins to fulfill spring contracts. Corn and soybeans are needed to meet the demands of Americans in these challenging times.

Baby Henry

In the midst of the spring field work and the global crisis we have some great news to share! Parents, Scott and Jessica Henry welcomed a happy and healthy baby boy on April 7, 2020. Wyatt Richard Henry marks the fifth generation of the Henry family in Story County.
